Story starter for Wednesday writing:

'Winter is coming.'

People across the world had been saying it for years.

Now, winter had arrived, and its icy clutches were spreading. A wall of ice had been creeping over the face of the world, enveloping everything in its path, inch by frosty inch. Cities and villages, forests and rivers; all had been devoured by the ever-hungry cold. When would it all end? Would the sun ever shine again?

WAGOLL for Thursday writing

The ice continued its relentless march towards our city. Crystal clear glaciers towered up over the buildings of the city making them seem tiny in comparison. All around me, I felt the icy cold biting at my skin. I could smell the fear of the people in the city. For months the ice slowly made its way closer and closer.
